

Cast Iron

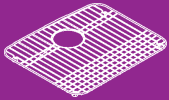

For a truly classic look try KOHLER Cast Iron. Its beauty, strength, thickness and durability mean it will last a lifetime, ageing beautifully with you and your home.

Its high gloss surface maintains a rich finish that resists chipping, staining and denting and its strength enables beautiful shapes and graceful design lines.

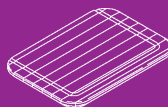

The pure authenticity of Cast Iron will complement other traditional features such as a range cooker or period details and will finish a traditional room beautifully. More modern designs can be used to complete a contemporary space with an element of authenticity and true style.

So whether you want to relax in surroundings reminiscent of the country, or experiment with contemporary materials and spaces, there is a Cast Iron sink to suit your needs.

Smart Divide kitchen sink

A brand new design concept for the kitchen sink with the use of a low bowl divider. Normal washing is carried out in one of the bowls or if larger items are to be washed, simply raise the water level to fill both bowls thus providing one extra large bowl. A great idea that also is an excellent water saving device.

Indio Undermount

The Indio offset double bowl sink offers a clean, modern look with its bevelled edge design. The low-profile bowl divider increases the clearance between tap and divider and makes it easier to fit large items into the bowls, increases the ability to transfer large items between bowls and minimises splashing by containing water lower in the bowl.

Accessories (included with sink)

Medium Bottom Basin Rack

The really useful half bowl is ideal for food preparation and comes with high quality accessories broadening its versatility. Pictured is the new Carbon tap (see page 192) that requires a 54mm mounting hole - the Indio is the only sink available with this tap-hole diameter. If you should choose a different tap the Indio is also available with normal 35 mm tap-holes. Just make sure you specify which type you need when ordering.
